ENVOY TAKES MESSAGE TO BERLIN

CABINET CONSIDERS NEW NOTE

Squash Pie a Weapon in Whitney Case Story

HOSPITAL BABY "DAMAGED GOODS"

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The diplomatic negotiations between the United States and Germany over the German submarine war and the sinking of the Lusitania have taken on a new phase with the departure of Meyer Gerhard, a special diplomatic envoy, for Germany to discuss personally the American situation with Dr. von Jagow, the German foreign minister.

It was announced today by a representative of the Scandinavian-American Line that Herr Gerhard sailed for Copenhagen on board the liner United States yesterday from New York. Herr Gerhard, who goes to Germany with the approval of President Wilson, is acting as agent of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador.

Count von Bernstorff had explained to President Wilson that he was having the utmost difficulty in communicating with Berlin, the cables passing through British hands. Consequently it was deemed advisable to send a personal representative to Berlin to explain to what extent feeling has been aroused in this country by the destruction of the Lusitania.

The United States is a slow ship and probably will not arrive at Copenhagen until about June 15. Herr Gerhard has been living for some time at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, headquarters in New York of the German ambassador. He is said to have been attached to the German embassy.

NOTE BEFORE CABINET.

President Wilson submitted an outline of his new note to Germany on the torpedoing of the Lusitania when the Cabinet met today.

The new American note is said to be brief and pointed, demanding whether Germany intends to be guided in the future by the principles of international law in its conduct of naval warfare.

The final draft, as outlined by President Wilson and revised to meet the demands of diplomatic usage, was expected to be dispatched to Berlin tomorrow, but it probably will not be made public here before Monday.

Great relief was evidenced in State Department circles over the fact the German ambassador was sending home a personal representative to report American public opinion to his government. It is known that Secretary Bryan has throughout the present crisis fought stubbornly against the assumption that Germany was looking for trouble with the United States.

The dispatch of this special envoy to Germany is said to be the work of the Secretary of State. He counts upon this method of influencing Kaiser Wilhelm to clear up the present misunderstanding between the United

'SAW BABY SLAPPED BY NURSE'

HAVERHILL, June 4.—Miss Margaret Sheen, twenty-two years old, of No. 24 Washington street, Groveland, a former patient at the Haverhill tuberculosis hospital, now under investigation by the Municipal Council, testified today that a baby patient at the hospital, one and one-half years old, was slapped and alluded to as "damaged goods" by Miss Landers, one of the nurses.

Miss Landers has not been on the stand yet. She was seated today among the witnesses for Miss Alice G. Marshall, the hospital superintendent. The hearing relates specifically to charges of inefficiency made against Miss Marshall by Alderman Stickney.

Miss Sheen said she had no difficulty with Miss Marshall, that her trouble was with Miss Landers. She swore that Miss Landers required her, a patient, to take the temperature, respiration and pulse of five other patients for several months.

BOSTON MAN TESTIFIES.

Frank Freeman of Boston, a former patient, was also on the stand again today. He supplemented his previous testimony of hugging nurses and other employes by declaring he had kissed Miss Mahshall several times. He thought she objected.

William J. Starr of No. 9 Marion street, in the Mt. Washington district, another former patient, testified that he saw Miss Marshall sitting in Freeman's lap three times, but that she tried to get away, though not making an outcry.

Starr said Miss Marshall once called him a "simp" and said to him: "Nobody home."

Miss Margaret Sheen, when asked if she had had trouble with Miss Marshall, said she had not, except that two or three times Miss Marshall refused to let her go home, saying it was better for her at the hospital.

"With whom did you have difficulty?" she was asked.

She replied: "With Miss Landers, one of the nurses. She required me to take the temperatures, respiration and pulse of five patients for a number of months. I had several other little jobs to do.

"Once I gave a year and one-half year old child a slice of bread and Miss Landers reprimanded me for it. She said not to give the child bread because it soiled the bed clothes and she had to change the bed clothes.

"Miss Landers slapped the baby because it continued to cry. I told Miss Landers she ought to be ashamed of herself. She said, 'Mind what I say. That is what I called 'damaged goods.'"

SUNDAY CARD-PLAYING.

"Miss Landers made me go up and down stairs, doing different kinds of errands when I didn't feel well."

"How much work did Miss Landers do?" asked former District Attorney W. Scott Peters, counsel for Alderman Stickney.

"Not very much," replied Miss

'WHISKEY NIGHTS' IN WILL CASE

"Whiskey night"—as the witness called them—at the T. D. Whitney store, when the wealthy merchant and his employes joined in buying whiskey and drinking it, were described today on the stand at the Whitney will trial by Harry Gowan of Braintree, who worked for Whitney for 25 years.

It was during one of these parties that some one "swatted one man with a squash pie." The owner and his men were in the store on these nights officially to dress the windows.

Another witness at the trial today told of carrying messages and bundles to the Brookline home of Mrs. Amy Barker, principal beneficiary under Whitney's will, these including lobster salads from the Adams House, all sent out to Mrs. Barker by Whitney.

Patrolman John A. Minahan of Brookline testified today that one night in 1902 or 1904, between 12 midnight and 12:45 morning, he saw Mr. Whitney walking along Beacon street under the influence of liquor, that Mr. Whitney went into a doorway and found he had mistaken his own door, and that he then went to the right door.

The policeman said that he saw Whitney waiting for his car at Coolidge corner mornings, that he knew Whitney.

Under cross-examination by Attorney George L. Mayberry, counsel for the executor, Patrolman Minahan described Whitney's general personal appearance and said that it was part of his duty as a policeman to note the people on his beat and especially to take notice of men he might see under the influence of liquor. He used to make notes in a book sometimes of the latter.

Whitney was then living at No. 1253 Beacon street, Brookline.

Clarence E. Cook, now a New Haven brakeman, testified that when he was janitor of a house on Foster street, Brookline, where Mrs. Amy H. Barker was living, Mr. Whitney used to call with Miss Mahoney or a Mr. Batchelder, but used to leave about 9:30 or 10 p. m.

QUESTIONS RAISED.

Mrs. Barker is the comely Brookline widow who is left one-fourth of Mr. Whitney's estate direct. Mr. Whitney's widow, Mrs. Alexis T. Whitney, who is contesting the will, gets one-half in trust. The other fourth is left direct to Mr. Whitney's sister, Mrs. Carrie W. Myrick. Mrs. Whitney, in her action, questions the proper execution of the will, the soundness of Mr. Whitney's mind and any influence exerted over Mr. Whitney by Mrs. Barker.

William F. Maguire, the third witness called for Mrs. Whitney today,

GERMANS MOVING ON LEMBERG

ZURICH, Switzerland, June 4.—The Russians are preparing to evacuate Lemberg, Galicia, according to advices received here today. Several departments of the Russian government which were established at Lemberg have already been removed to Zlocow, thirty-eight miles to the east.

By STEVEN BURNETT.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA, June 4.—The Austro-German drive against Lemberg, the last Galician city of importance held by the Russians, is now in full swing. The great army of General von Mackensen which stormed Przemysl yesterday is sweeping on toward the east.

General von Linsengen's Austro-German army, which crossed the Dneister, is sweeping toward Lemberg from the south and has reached Mikolajuf, only thirty-five miles away.

The Austrians and Germans are rushing enormous quantities of artillery ammunition toward the Galician front.

The Russian army which was driven from strip] burned the district of 200 oil wells and the town of Boryslaw. The city was partly destroyed by artillery fire.

NEW DRIVE FOR WARSAW.

While only scant reports have been received of the German advance against Warsaw on the Ozora-Rawka front, military critics believe this is of the greatest importance, even eclipsing the successful advance on Lemberg.

It is generally believed the Russian defensive lines were definitely halted by the German retreat is estimated that the Russians now occupy positions were mentioned, and the length of from a distance of about 150 miles.

It is reported that the garrison of Ivangorod, consisting of at least two divisions of infantry, including regulars, the troops and newly raised Imperial Guard, has been withdrawn to the north.

Petrokow, also is attacked in Austro-Hungarian dispatches, telegraphing some hours before the fall of Przemysl, announced that, with the retaking of the latter permanent works to the south of the fortress the stronghold could not hold out.

Its isolation as a fact what has been reported from other sources, that the Russians after continuing reinforcements and supplies continued to hold out in the forts, but finally scattered this procedure when the railroad came under the Austrian fire and began hurriedly to remove guns and provisions.

To free Galicia of the Russians the Teutonic allies must push their back further hundred miles to the Russian border and also drive the Russian left wing from Bukowina.

Russian headquarters have already

The Danish three-masted sailing ship Salvator, bound from Copenhagen to Bristol, has also been sunk in the North Sea by a submarine. The crew was saved.

The crew of the Welsh steamer Hawth and four survivors of the crew of the Welsh trawler Viola, which were sunk off Scilly Islands by the German submarine U-28, were landed at Milford today. Six members of the Viola's crew were killed when the trawler was being shelled by the submarine.

The Villaistas left Monterey May 18, and since then the hungry peons and their families have attacked and looted groceries, bakeries, banks and mercantile establishments at will.

VILLA GETS NOTE.

A copy of President Wilson's warning to Mexico is now in the hands of General Villa, leader of the Constitutionalists in northern Mexico. According to dispatches from El Paso, the document was handed to General Villa at his headquarters south of Leon by George C. Carothers, special agent of the American State Department. The following telegram was received in El Paso from General Villa today:

our any friction between the United States and the government I represent, but not feel ready to give any opinion as to what my answer will be until I have consulted with my cabinet. First I am a Mexican patriot; second, I am a friend of the American people."

It is reported from Vera Cruz that General Carranza may not reply to President Wilson's note at all.

Dispatches from Waco, Tex., say that all of the local guards of the American Consolidated Mining & Milling Company at Tezuchi, Oaxaca, Mex., were killed last Tuesday, according to word received there today by officials of the company. Vice-Consul Clifford D. Johnson at Oaxaca, telegraphed that the situation was critical. A telegram was sent to Secretary of State Bryan requesting him to give protection in charge of the properties.

FOREIGNERS LEAVING.

Parties of Americans and other foreigners on horseback and in automobiles will leave Mexico City for Puebla, the nearest point in rail communication with Vera Cruz, next Tuesday and Wednesday, the British Minister to the Mexican capital today reported to the State Department.

Six refugees departing on horseback will be under the care of Major Arthur Vine Young, Cummins. They will leave on Tuesday. Those going in automobiles will start Wednesday and will overtake the horsemen on the road. The British charge d'affaires in Mexico City will accompany this group to guarantee their safety.

Minister Cardoso announced that he had delivered President Wilson's note of warning to the Foreign Office of the Constitutionalist government yesterday. It will be considered by President Carranza. No statement has been made as yet to send the note directly to General Zapata, since Zapata is in the mountains south of Mexico City, and are impelled Garza to act for him in the matter.

That Carranza is bent on pushing his campaign without regard to the opinion of President Wilson, is indicated in a statement made public by Eliseo Arredondo, the Carranza agent in this city. Apparently Carranza is in no mood to compromise.

While officials are not disposed to prejudice Carranza's attitude until the time had opportunity to reply to the President's warning, they fear that Carranza may not fall in with the plans proposed for the reconciliation of the factions. This would mean that the United States would be forced within a short time to resort to more radical measures to help Mexico save herself and solve her people.

While Carranza is apparently defiant, Villa is playing a crafty game. It has been said in behalf of Villa that he will accept in principle the proposal of President Wilson that the contending factions settle their differences otherwise than by armed force. A formal reply to this effect is expected from Villa.

PATIENT TELLS OF HOSPITAL KISSES

Sheen. "I would see Miss Landers sitting in her room for an hour or an hour and one-half at a time reading a book and the only one doing any work would be myself."

Questioned on card-playing, witness said she saw Sunday card playing and, once or twice, saw Miss Marshall playing cards with patients on Sunday.

She thought Freeman had privileges, staying up later nights than the other patients to rest.

CALLED "HOPE FIND."

William J. Starr, the next witness, testified that he entered the hospital as a patient in July, 1914, and was discharged February 8, last, by Miss Marshall, who told him that she discharged him on advice of Dr. Clark, for the good of hospital discipline. It was 11 o'clock in the morning but, said Starr, Miss Marshall would not let him even stay to dinner.

Starr said Miss Marshall accused him of being a "dope fiend" and of being intoxicated. He said he was recommended for going into the kitchen and out of the grounds without permission. He complained to Miss Marshall one morning that Miss Landers, the nurse, had awakened him three times the night before to give him cough medicine when another patient had been coughing.

Questioned about Freeman's alleged hugging of Miss Marshall, Starr said:

"On three occasions I saw Miss Marshall sitting in Freeman's lap. Yes, she tried to get away but Freeman held his hand around her waist."

Starr added that Miss Marshall did not cry out.

Starr said he saw Miss Marshall return to the hospital at night in an automobile with two or three women but no man, except once the chauffeur.

Witness had been for Christmas breakfast. Saw four or five other patients given whiskey that morning.

ADMITS KISSING.

Frank Freeman, of Boston, who claims to have hugged and kissed Miss Marshall, was the first witness today.

Frequently in his testimony Freeman would refuse to answer, or say he had forgotten, and this sentence provoked sharp passages between the opposing counsel.

Judge John J. Ryan, counsel for Miss Marshall, asked:

"Who told you not to answer these questions?"

Alderman Stickney (who brought about the investigation) told me my testimony would only concern the hospital."

Ryan exclaimed: "This ingrate is not my witness."

Alderman Rothwell Woods appealed to Mayor Albert L. Bartlett to force the witness to answer, and Freeman testified under threats of legal action, if he refused.

Q.—Did you ever kiss Miss Marshall? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—How many times? A.—Several times.

Q.—Did Miss Marshall object? A.—I think so.

Q.—Did you ever visit Miss Marshall at her home in Lynn? A.—Yes; once I went to Boston to see my people, and she was at home in Lynn, and I went there for dinner.

Q.—Who is paying your expenses? A.—Miss Mckay and Miss Cook (former employees of the hospital). They were to give me what money I needed. I've received $15 or thereabouts.

Q.—Did you break any rules or regulations at the hospital? A.—Yes.

Q.—What rules? A.—The rules of the rest hours, of going to bed at 8:30, of going off the grounds without permission, and of smoking a cigarette.

Q.—Did Miss Marshall reprimand you? A.—I think she did.

Q.—Were you sent to Beffel to work on a farm? A.—Yes, I was to get my board, and whatever I was worth.

At this there was a titter in the court, and the spectators were called to order.

Sends out an Appeal
FOR YOUR HELP.

The Largest Retail Clothing Organization in America for Men and Young Men, confronted by enormous and ever-increasing surplus stocks, is now Compelled to Offer IN THIS SALE greater reductions and savings than were ever made on Georges Model Clothes even in July and August.

Our New York Custom shops are under contract to work fifty-two weeks in the year, supplying each link in the chain of GEORGES stores a certain number of garments daily. This policy which in normal times enables us to offer the finest, best-styled Clothes at the lowest prices in America now reacts to our decided disadvantage in these days of acute business stagnation due to the European conflict and unfavorable weather conditions in April and May.

While the regular clothing merchant cuts down his orders from the manufacturer — OUR PRODUCTION direct from the workrooms continues to pour into our stores, and unless we force a quick certain outlet we shall be buried under an avalanche.

Therefore, instead of waiting until after July 4th to inaugurate our regular semi-annual clearance sale, we send out our "S O S" signal NOW, offering as a reward for your immediate assistance better, bigger and more extraordinary clothes values than you ever experienced even in July or August.

Following Are the Suit and Top Coat Reductions

Originally $12.50 and $15—Now	Originally $16.50 and $18—Now	Originally $20 and $22.50—Now

Similiar reductions have been made on every garment in steps of one or two dollars from the $25 Suits and Top Coats NOW $15.50 — and $28 grades NOW $17.50 — up to the very cream of the stock, originally $40, NOW $24.50.

All this season's latest one, two and three-button models, materials, patterns and colorings for both conservative and extreme dressers—including staple blues and blacks —are NOW sacrificed for a quick clearance.

ALLIES PLEDGE SAFETY FOR GERMAN ENVOY FROM THE U. S.

States and Germany. Other members of the cabinet are said to be skeptical of the success of the plan.

Because of the statement in the German note that reliable information was at hand to the effect that the Lusitania was armed, the American government intends to restate that it made full and searching investigation before the Lusitania sailed and that its good faith is pledged to the assertion that no guns, either mounted or unmounted, were carried by the vessel.

In many quarters it was believed Germany might find a way out of the dilemma by accepting the statement of the United States as superseding its own evidence, declaring a mistake had been made and paying the war for the giving of reparation and an insistence by Germany that some formal assurance be given that no vessels leaving American ports carrying passengers should be armed to resist capture.

DOUBT ABOUT REPLY.

On the other hand, officials conversant with the feeling in Berlin official quarters toward the United States are not sanguine that a satisfactory reply will be received, because of the evidence that the Admiralty and War Staffs have been dominating the Foreign office as not infrequently is the case with nations at war.

President Wilson's emphasis on the fact that the United States would insist on word or act to become an acquiescence in its position in the Lusitania case was described by the Ambassador in a memorandum which he has transmitted to his government.

The dispatch of the Ambassador's representative, who has been pledged safe conduct by the allied powers, will not affect the sending of the American government's reminder to the last German note, though it may delay Germany's reply.

The transmission of a cabled report on a conference through the courtesy of a foreign government often makes it difficult, it was pointed out in diplomatic quarters, for the recipient nation to give full weight to the language of the writer of the communication on the assumption that he does not speak as freely and frankly as might be the case if the message were not read by the officials of another government.

Ambassador Bernstorff's idea is to supplement the cabled report with the personal words sent through an emissary capable of describing the situation accurately.

ENVOY IS HOPEFUL.

The Ambassador's plan has raised him to be hopeful of a satisfactory outcome.

Believing his government was uninformed on the feeling of the United States when the last note was written in Berlin, he is said to be confident that officials will now learn important details that will be of guidance in answering the American government's new communication.

Although the President naturally would not discuss the country's relations with the allies, the Ambassador is said to have been convinced by his talk with the President of his sincerity of purpose in upholding the neutrality of the United States.

The belief has often been freely expressed in German quarters that if the Imperial government had been convinced that the United States would take equally vigorous course in securing an adherence by Great Britain to the international law with reference to shipments of conditional contraband and foodstuffs, a conciliatory reply would have been sent to the last American note.

STAHLE DISCOVERED TO BE IN THE GERMAN SECRET SERVICE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Gustave Stahle, who made affidavit that the Cunarder Lusitania carried four guns on the deck when leaving New York on her last voyage, is an agent of the German secret service, according to several of his friends.

This statement could be obtained directly from Stahle today for he had disappeared from his home.

There was an air of mystery about the acquaintances of Stahle when inquiries were made. Miss Margaret Kane, from whom Stahle rented his room eight weeks ago, says that she knows absolutely nothing about him.

One of them, who introduced himself as Daniel Jenny, said:

"Stahle may be sick later but for the present he will keep away. He may never come back. Stahle was a salesman of cheese and eggs. He is broken before going in for this work. He and I lived together at No. 227 Bloomfield street and spent our time at the German docks. About eight weeks ago we were approached by a man to him and was Hardenberg of the German secret service. He had lots of money and it is said that he had a commission from the German consulate to accomplish some important work. He was to receive $400 for this, he said.

ENTERS SECRET SERVICE.

"Hardenberg told Stahle that he would give him an opportunity of serving something for Germany and at the same time put him in the way of making some money. Stahle agreed to do secret service work and then Hardenberg took him to New York.

"Stahle moved to No. 11 Leroy street. Two young women Miss Josephine Morrison and her sister Margaret, from Philadelphia, also moved in. They occupied the front room.

"Stahle would leave the house frequently in the evening, but where he went I do not know. In the day he was constantly in communication with the German consulate, at No. 11 Broadway.

Jenny volunteered to try to find the roommate, whose identity all tried to conceal. After a search of Greenwich Village he was located at the Grand Central Hotel, corner of Bleecker and Carmine streets, in the safe of which he was known as "the mysterious one."

"I met Gustave Stahle in Hoboken just before coming to New York to live," he said. He and Karl Hardenberg were very friendly. Hardenberg is named Carl, not Hans, and he holds a commission to do secret service work for the German consulate.

PROMISED $400.

"He would take Stahle out evenings, introducing him to men and women friends and dining with him. I heard him mention that he received $400 to accomplish something for the German government.

"A short time ago Hardenberg took Stahle down to the German consulate, where the affidavit was drawn up which told of the discovery of the guns on the Lusitania. I don't know where Hardenberg has been since.

At the German consulate it was denied that anything pertaining to the Lusitania and the affidavits had anything to do with their official duties.

"We are here for commercial purposes—not for things political," said an under secretary. "I am instructed to refer all applicants for information on this subject to the German Ambassador at Washington."

From another source it was established that those in the German consulate knew that the German ambassador had private emissaries in New York and that secret agents are employed by them.

Charles P. Sumner, general agent of the Cunard line, said that he could not declare strong enough the falsity of the affidavit that the Lusitania was armed.

DENIAL OF CHARGE.

In direct contradiction to the statement attributed to Stahle in the affidavit presented by the German ambassador to the State Department Wednesday is the announcement of a member of the neutrality squad that the Lusitania left New York unarmed. This announcement is the first authoritative statement pertaining to the work of the neutrality squad that has yet been made.

It is as follows: "The eight members of the neutrality squad were ordered to search carefully for arms or cannon on any outgoing or incoming ships. They were informed of the places on ships where gun mountings would most likely be and informed of the law which allowed merchant vessels to mount stern guns for their own defence.

"One hour before the Lusitania sailed the collector of the port and several men made a close examination and found the planks still in place above the unused gun mountings. No cannon were found aboard and affidavits of our men are to this effect. Our evidence shows that statements of cannon being mounted are untrue."

New Letter Carriers.

Postmaster Murray has appointed to substitute letter carriers from the civil service lists for summer work. After administering the oath to them he gave them a short talk on their duties.

Storm Headed North, May Hit Us Late Today

That Hatteras storm is moving fast, according to the weather man and may hit New England late today or tomorrow.

There's another storm on its northeastward way, after a good start from Texas. If they meet—well the weather chap says if—and less it go at that.

In the meantime, as Friend Swinnerton would say, fair and moderate is the weather prediction for New England.

And also—in the meantime—the moderate weather mercury sticks around 50 in the daytime and kicks back to the 40's at night.

IMMEDIATE ACTION IS URGED IN MOVE FOR BETTER STREETS

James J. Phelan, banker, of Hornblower & Weeks, George W. McNear, president of the Bay State Automobile Association, and City Councilor Daniel J. McDonald today indorsed the AMERICAN'S Better Streets for Boston campaign, and urged with vigor that immediate action be taken to improve the streets.

By GEORGE W. M'NEAR.

Boston's streets are bad, very bad. As they say of the critically-ill man in the hospital, the streets are on the dangerous list." Boston's streets in many places are dangerous.

Of course we can say that had the city followed the old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," the streets very probably would not be in as bad shape as at present. Much good could have been done had the city taken the "stitch in time" in time.

ATTENTION NEEDED.

I have watched the holes grow larger and larger. I have seen them daily prove a greater menace to all vehicles that use the streets with similar large holes, streets. I have seen many and as an automobile man I have noticed how because of the city's bad streets is utterly impossible to keep my cars in decent shape.

Other automobile men have the same experience.

There are 400 members in our association. These are owners and dealers. I have no doubt every one of them has had experiences similar to my own.

The condition of many of the streets is disgraceful. Practically all the streets need attention. The main thoroughfares in Boston are terrible to travel over. But it should not be so. Instead Boston should have the very best streets we can get.

CRITICISM JUST.

There is the matter of civic pride. We are all proud of our city. But we do not want our visitors to see the streets of Boston as these streets are today. Our pride would certainly take a fall, for they would probably add to all their other praise of our city the sting of a just criticism of our streets.

There will be many strangers in the city in the next few months. From all over the country they will come. When they go away we want them to take with them the best possible impression possible of Boston. This cannot be unless we improve our streets before they get here.

The city's reputation demands immediate street improvements.

The AMERICAN'S campaign has the right aim—immediate street improvements. The citizens do not want any quibbling or time-wasting. Their demand is for action. Something should be done at once.

By DANIEL J. M'DONALD.

Boston streets are in lamentable shape. There can be no denying that. Everyone admits it. And the citizens are demanding that improvements be made right away. There is no denying also that this is the proper demand.

It is not the time to cavil or to quibble or to delay. It is no time to be trying to place the blame for existing street conditions. What the public wants is action. The citizens aren't so much interested in attempting to place any responsibility for conditions as they are in having the streets improved immediately.

VOICES PUBLIC'S DEMAND.

The AMERICAN'S campaign is to be commended in the highest terms. For the AMERICAN is calling attention in an emphatic and striking way to deplorable conditions of our streets, and at the same time is voicing the public's demand that some action be taken at once.

The season is almost upon us when thousands of tourists will enter the city. Many of these in other years have gone abroad. All that come will see our streets, and if they see them in their present shape, certainly Boston's reputation will suffer. It will be no good report that they will carry out of Boston's "up-to-dateness" as a city of metropolitan pretensions. With good streets Boston will be able to receive all these visitors and impress them that this city is a metropolis in every sense of the word.

The thing to do now is to provide these better streets.

There are other vital considerations—business, health, civic pride and so on. All these point the way to the only solution of the street problem—immediate action looking toward the betterment of the streets.

I have just looked at one of the holes in Tremont street. It is so big that a person could almost lie down in it. But it is only one hole out of many. You see them on other streets, too.

This street question is an emergency that confronts us. We simply must act. I am for immediate action.

The street improvements cannot begin too quickly.

By JAMES J. PHELAN.

The streets as I observe them are in frightful condition. Especially is this true of the streets in the business district.

This is not the time for words. There must be action. Something must be done, and at once.

Boston's crying need is for street improvements immediately. The city cannot afford to wait. The AMERICAN'S campaign is a vigorous presentation of what Boston needs in the worst way. Now let those that have the power see that the city gets better streets without delay.

AUSTRIANS MOVING ON ITALIANS

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, June 4.—After resting steadily before the Italian invasion the Austrians have finally assumed the offensive. An official statement based upon dispatches from Lieutenant-General Count Luigi Cadorna, chief of staff, announces that the Austrians are striving violently to retake the position which they lost to the Italians at Montenero. Along the Carnia frontier the Austrians are delivering fierce attacks in the Alpine passes, but everywhere these have been repulsed. The official statement follows:

Along the entire front movements of troops preparatory to fighting are continuing favorably.

We deem it expedient to call attention to the view though determined offensive of our troops in the mountains on the left bank of the Isonzo river, overcoming the Austrian works which are strongly defended with big guns.

Our troops have progressed steadily through mountain gorges and over precipitous cliffs. Along the frontier of Carnia the Austrians are fiercely but unsuccessfully attacking our positions. At Gorizia the Austrians are endeavoring without success to retake the position taken by us at Monte Croce. We are now complete masters of Monte Nero.

King Victor Emmanuel, who is daily inspecting troops at the front, has personally decorated Lieutenant-Peter Cicchitto of the Alpine chasseurs, who led an attack against the Austrian trenches in the inferno valley, where he showed exceptional gallantry. Although wounded, Lieutenant Cicchitto kept directing operations and exhorted his men to go forward.

Refugees from Trieste declare that the Austrian city is completely shut and that thousands of the residents have fled, fearing the bombardment by Italian artillery. The theaters, cafes and most of the shops are closed. There is a great scarcity of food, as the military authorities seized most of the provisions for use of the army, only gendarmes have been left to guard the imperial castle at Miramar, all the troops being massed in the forts in the hills north of the city. An enormous amount of heavy artillery has been mounted upon the plateau north of Monte Belvedere to sweep the city and the harbor. The harbor is full of mines.

Most of the streets and public buildings have been mined. The military authorities have warned the people to leave the city, saying it would be destroyed with artillery and dynamite mines if the Italians took it.

Boston Italians Eager to Fight

Several hundred Italians in Greater Boston, who served in the army of their native country, have applied to the Italian consulate for transportation home in order that they may fight for Italy in the war, according to a statement given out at the consulate today. Arrangements are being made to send these volunteers to New York, where they will be sent on the first steamer for an Italian port.

LA CONQUISTA DI MONTENERO GLI AUSTRIACI ATTACCANO

MILAN, 4 Giugno.—Il fatto che il Papa italiano hanno attraversato l'Isonzo dopo un sanguinoso combattimento, e conquistato una forte posizione alla base del Montenero, ha prodotto favorevolissima impressione nel pubblico e rafforzata la confidenza che l'esercito italiano sarà all'altezza della missione affidatagli.

Il passaggio dell'Isonzo fu preparato fin dal primo giorno della guerra, quando le forze italiane si affrontarono fermamente e nel primo scontro, sul Banco destro di detto fiume, l'immediato progresso e successivo ritirarsi di un reggimento austriaco, che lasciò morti e feriti sul terreno. Il 2 giugno i nostri soldati si trovarono di fronte al forte Montenero, potente opera fortificata, che domina la grandissima, tortuosa curvatura del fiume a sud di detto. Le batterie poste sulle sue alte creste opposero una seria resistenza al passaggio delle truppe italiane, ma queste in egual modo riuscirono a por piede sull'altra riva.

Da Tarvis a Tolmino gli austriaci hanno numerosi forti, e malgrado l'intendono opporre i movimenti dei corpi nemici nelle vallate di Saxo, Centro tali forti occupano gli alti, così hanno infinite con successo le loro operazioni.

GLI AUSTRIACI PRENDONO L'OFFENSIVA.

Roma, 4 Giugno.—Dopo essersi ritirati lentamente dinanzi alla superiore forza italiana, gli Austriaci hanno iniziato l'offensiva. Se ne deduce da un dispaccio ufficiale del Generale Cadorna, il quale comunica che gli Austriaci hanno infruttuosamente attaccato i nostri italiani per riprendere la perduta posizione di Montenero. Lungo la frontiera Carnica gli attacchi degli Austriaci si succedono terribili, nei nostri sforzi per avanzare nelle spinti Montenero e completamente in mano degli Italiani, i quali l'han reso formidabile per la loro difesa sola.

Il Re Vittorio Emmanuele che giornalmente ispeziona le truppe sulle varie fronte, si personalmente decorato il tenente Pietro Cicchitto degli Alpini, che diresse un attacco contro le trincee austriache nella Valle dell'Inferno, ove egli si dimostro' coraggiosissimo. Quantunque ferito, egli si mantenne al suo posto, dirigendo l'attacco ed esortando i suoi soldati ad andare innanzi.

NEW BATTLE FOR CITY OF WARSAW

been moved to Rhoda, which is about fifty miles from Lemberg and near the Russian frontier, and Lemberg is sixty miles from Przemysl. The Russians now will form a new line to the eastward of their present position and according to this indication this line will begin somewhere near the junction of the Vistula and the San, and extend south and east of Jaroslau.

It will leave the San at that point and follow the line of the Wisznia River, running southeast and northwest toward the Dniester. It will then be in a position to attempt the defence of Lemberg and the two lines of railway leading from the Russian bases.

There appears to have been no formal surrender of Przemysl, as was the case when it was captured by the Russians, who took over 117,000 prisoners ten weeks ago. Following the Russian capture of Przemysl, big Russian army released by the surrender was rushed southward for the drive by which the Russians attempted to pierce the Carpathians and invade Hungary. Meanwhile, the forts of Przemysl, which had been partially destroyed by the Austrians before they surrendered, were hastily repaired.

With the Russians beaten back in the Carpathian fighting, General von Mackensen, at the beginning of May, began the drive that sent the Russians reeling back in West Galicia. Two weeks later he arrived before Przemysl with a great Austro-German army and began the actual siege operations.

RUSSIA EXPLAINS PRZEMYSL'S FALL

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.

PETROGRAD, June 4.—Although it is officially admitted that the Russians have evacuated Przemysl, the Russian War Office today announced success for the Muscovite troops on the lower San, in the vicinity of Rudnik, where 4,000 German prisoners and numerous cannon and machine guns were taken. The Russians claim to have pierced the Austro-German line at that point.

Rudnik lies in the San valley, about thirty-six miles from Sienawa. The official statement follows:

"Tuesday the battle in Galicia continued with undiminished desperation along the entire front between the Vistula and the Nadvorna region.

"Upon the left bank of the lower San after the powerful advance on Wednesday we pierced the enemy's line and captured an important position which the Austro-Germans had held since the capture of Rudnik. We captured 4,000 prisoners and took numerous machine guns.

"Fighting on the whole line as far as the Wisloka continues successfully.

"As to Przemysl, in view of the state of its artillery works which were destroyed by the Austrians before they surrendered the fortress to us in March, we recognized the futility of trying to hold the place. Its maintenance in our hands merely served our purpose of detaining the German and Austrian advance in that section so that our operations in the northwest, along the San river, were facilitated.

"It was decided some time ago to remove our war materials which had fallen into our hands when we took Przemysl from the Austrians. After this had been done the last of our heavy batteries were removed at night. Following instructions our troops then evacuated their advanced defensive positions.

"West of Rudnik we almost completely annihilated the second, third and fourth Tyrol regiments.

"On the Bzura river, on June 1, the enemy used great quantities of poisonous gases, but owing to a change in the direction of the wind most of it was blown back into the German trenches and large numbers of Germans were compelled to flee across an exposed place where they were decimated by our fire."

FRENCH PUSH ON NORTH OF ARRAS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 4.—Further progress has been made by the French in the furious battle north of Arras, it is officially reported in a communique issued by the French War Office today.

East of Souchez the French stormed an isolated inn which had been fortified and turned into a blockhouse by the Germans. Fifty German prisoners and three machine guns were captured there.

Despite German reinforcements and the deadly fire of hidden machine guns the French have gained further ground in the intricate German defences known as the "labyrinth," southwest of Neuville St. Vaast.

Carency and Neuville St. Vaast are both reported to have been destroyed by the mighty artillery duel which rages night and day on the Arras-La Bassee line.

U. S. TO APPEAL STEEL TRUST SUIT

WASHINGTON, June 4—The next step in the announcement of the court decision refusing the federal government permission to dissolve the United States Steel Corporation, will be the formal filing of the decree, followed by an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The decision, as announced at Trenton, N. J., by the United States District Court of New Jersey, is unanimous.

As against the government the court refused to dissolve the corporation, holding that in acquiring its foreign and home trade the concern did not violate the Sherman anti-trust act and denied all of the injunctions prayed for by the Department of Justice.

As against the Steel Corporation, the court held that the committee meetings participated in by 50 per cent. of the steel trade of the country including the Steel Corporation, subsequent to the famous Gary dinners of eight or nine years ago, were unlawful combinations to control prices; but as these meetings had stopped before the government filed its complaint in October, 1911, the judges held that there was no occasion for an injunction.

BASED ON BUSINESS FACTS.

The opinion of the court suggests that such practices lie within the province of the new Federal Trade Commission, but adds that if their repetition is apprehended the court will, on motion of the government, retain jurisdiction of the case for that particular purpose.

A synopsis of the decision of the senior Judge, Joseph J. Buffington, prepared by direction of the court, states that the keynote of the entire opinion is "that this case, a proceeding under the Sherman law, is largely one of business facts."

In another part of the opinion the court states that "the real test of monopoly is not the size of that which is acquired, but the trade power of that which is not acquired." "If mere size were the test of monopoly and trade restraint," the court further on said, "we have not one but half a dozen unlawful monopolies in the large department stores of a single city."

APPROVES ROOSEVELT DEAL.

The court found nothing wrong in the Steel Corporation acquiring the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company during the financial panic of 1907, and thus virtually approves the attitude of the Roosevelt administration in not interfering with that deal.

On this point the court held that the output of the Tennessee at the time was only 1.7 per cent. of the country's total output; that up to that time it had not been a business success; that its principal product, rails, was made at a loss; that its ultimate success was doubtful and involved a further outlay of $25,000,000, and that the purchase of the Tennessee property, as well as that of several other steel concerns, occurred in the history of the big corporation, was made in fair business course and was "the honest exertion of one's right to contract for one's benefit, unaccompanied by a wrongful motive to injure others."

SUSTAINS ANDREW CARNEGIE.

With regard to Andrew Carnegie, who, the government charged, was a party to the "unlawful combination," and "took the bonds of the corporation with all the infirmities attaching to such participation" the court found that there is no proof that he had any other relation in the formation of the Steel Corporation than that of seller of his stocks and bonds, and the court declared to be true Mr. Carnegie's statement that he disposed of his interests in a desire to retire from the hazards and responsibility of active business.

Four judges, Buffington, McPherson, Hunt and Woolley, sat in this case.

Judge Buffington wrote the principal opinion and Judge Woolley wrote a concurring opinion in which Judge Hunt concurred. The court stated that "all the members of the court are in agreement as to the decree that will be entered, although they are not in complete accord concerning every step by which that result is reached."

The opinion of Judge Buffington covers 150 pages.

The suit was instituted by the Taft administration and was prosecuted for the government by Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, as chief counsel.

"CANNOT BE MONOPOLIZED."

Taking up the constituent companies one by one the court says: "It will be seen that in location, facilities, capital and haste supplies they show such past, present and prospective competition as affords just ground for concluding that the steel and iron business of this country is not being and indeed cannot be monopolized. For the real test of monopoly is not the size of that which is acquired, but the trade power of that which is not acquired."

The court discusses the foreign trade of the Steel Corporation and shows that it has been built up not by restraining or taking away the trade of others, but by creating its own. It is shown in the opinion that when the Steel Corporation was formed the American steel companies had no dependable foreign trade. Such foreign steel sales as were then made consisted in what was known as "dumping," that is, in unloading or dumping steel at low prices in foreign markets when the American market was over supplied.

Of the corporation's $91,000,000 of trade, the opinion says, $80,000,000 is done in conjunction with 158 other American concerns, which companies made articles the steel company did not make, but got their basic supplies for making them from the Steel Corporation.

FOREIGN TRADE COMMENDED.

The difficulties of establishing such foreign trade are discussed at length. It is shown that the tariffs of Germany, Italy, Austria and Russia prevented the sale of steel in those countries and the trade acquired had to be built up in other parts of the world.

The foreign trade branch of the case is summed up by the court as follows:

"With these facts, figures and results proved in this record we are warranted in holding that the foreign trade of the Steel Corporation, its mode of building it up and its retention when built up, are not contrary to the Sherman law."

CONDEMNS GARY DINNERS.

As to the Gary dinners and the meetings of manufacturers subsequent thereto, the court says:

"Freedom of speech and freedom of individual action are hardly prized in American society and no legislation forbids men to come together and speak freely to each other about every detail of their common business.

"And if such individual should choose to announce at such a meeting the price he intends to charge for his wares, we are aware of no law that forbids him so doing.

"But at this point, we approach debatable ground for an individual is permitted to do some things that are denied to an association of individuals.

"To our minds the testimony taken as a whole makes the conclusion inevitable that the result of these meetings was an understanding about prices that was equivalent to an agreement. We have no doubt that among those present some sincerely dissented and went away intending to do what they pleased, but most probably most of the participants understood and assented to the view that they were under some kind of an obligation to adhere to the prices that had been announced or declared to the general sense of the meeting.

"We cannot doubt that such an arrangement or understanding (it would matter little whether formal or informal) was the most appropriate amounts to a combination or common action forbidden by law.

"It is only fair to add that in so saying the participants in the agreement did not intend to act illegally. No doubt they did intend to exercise their full legal rights, but, of course, such exercise could not sanction and they believed they had succeeded in keeping within such proper limits. For the reasons given by us both they were mistaken, but we acquit them of recklessness or attempted evasion.

"But the period of co-operation passed away before the bill was filed, and as far as we can see it is not likely to be repeated. We do not think the government would profit by an injunction so drastic a penalty as the dissolution of the corporation, and in the absence of some showing on both sides, retain the bill for the purpose of restraining measures suggested by the amendments that might be contemplated hereafter. We may perhaps suggest that under recent legislation Congress may have provided sufficient remedy for any calculated action that may be in the direct line of the adoption or the maintenance of unreasonable prices."

Distinct surprise was evident at the Department of Justice and in government circles generally over the issue of the suit.

Attorney-General Gregory after a lengthy conference with his chief assistant in charge of trust provisions, declined to make a statement as to the next move of the government in the case. It was generally believed, however, that no effort would be made to carry the matter further pending the probability that important new brought under the Sherman law, by the Supreme Court, the real practice of the government has been to pursue all such cases to a final judgment in the court of last resort.

At the Department of Justice and at the White House, administration officials were silent when asked as to the breadth of the powers conferred upon the Federal Trade Commission by the decision in the Steel Corporation case.

Attorney-General Gregory and Assistant Attorney-General Todd held a conference with President Wilson at Mr. Todd's call, and it is expected that before the next steps to be taken by the department are determined President Wilson will have an opportunity to discuss the matter with the members of the cabinet.

While the most important questions presented by the case it was suggested today that President Wilson would desire to discuss the matter with his Cabinet before any definite action by the Department of Justice was decided upon.

How Fat Folks May Become Slim.

A SIMPLE, SAFE AND RELIABLE WAY THAT CALLS FOR NO DRASTIC DIET, OR TIRESOME EXERCISES.

To be excessively fat is very mortifying. People who are too stout are mighty sensitive on this subject, as folds and fat folks are strapped. Therefore people who are carrying around a burden of unhealthy and unsightly fat will be glad to know that they can reduce their weight without starvation diet or irksome exercises.

If you have been getting too stout of late and want to reduce your weight in a quick, safe and reliable way, spend as much time as you can in the open air, practice deep breathing and get from any good druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight, and don't cease off the treatment or even skip a single dose until you are down to normal.

Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps digestion, corts little and is designed to eliminate fatty accumulations in the system wherever located.

Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight, the flesh should become firm, the skin smooth and the general health improved. In fact your features should soon become lighter, your work seem easier and a lighter and more buoyant feeling take possession of your whole being.

Every person who is ten or fifteen pounds over normal weight should give this treatment a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.

PIMPLES RED AND DISFIGURING

Came on Face. Then on Arms. Itched So Would Scratch. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In Three Weeks Healed.

68 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.—Mr. trouble began with pimples spreading on my arms. They were very reddish and then itched so that I began to scratch them and that caused eruption. They first came on my face and they were so red and disfiguring and my face itched so at night that I would scratch them until they became bleeding. I would get to bed about nine o'clock and fall asleep about twelve.

"I used remedies and creams, but it only made me feel worse. After about five or six weeks I saw the Cuticura advertisement in the paper. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment three weeks and I was completely healed. The trouble was gone."

(Signed) I. Rommer, Oct. 16, 1914.

It is easy to claim to speedily heal itching skin troubles and to promote and maintain a good complexion, clear skin, clear scalp, good hair and soft white hands, but quite another thing to do so. Cuticura has been successfully doing this work throughout the world for those of all ages.

ROOSEVELT UPHELD IN DEAL WITH THE TENNESSEE COMPANY

In its decision favoring the United States Steel Corporation the court decided that Theodore Roosevelt, as President, did right in effecting the deal with the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, to avert a panic.

The decision of the court effectually establishes that the corporation is not a monopoly in restraint of trade.

Other points of the decision are:

Sixty per cent. of steel is produced by corporation's competitors.

In ten years the corporation's business increased 40 per cent., while that of eight competitors increased from 62 to 3779 per cent.

Andrew Carnegie was but a seller of his own stocks and bonds and not a party to unlawful combination.

The Gary dinners were stopped before the filing of suit, therefore beyond cognizance.

SERMON BEARS POLICY 'GIGS'

NEW YORK, June 4.—In the confession of three men who are soon to be heads of an organization which has been rubbing a rocky stone all over the city, District Attorney Whitman thinks he has found the means of stopping policy playing here.

John F. Lorenzo, who pleaded guilty today of having policy slips in his pocket, when sentenced by Mr. Whitman is a lay preacher. A copy of a sermon was found in his pocket, and on the back were several numbers which were said to be the "tips" of policy

Mayor Curley Plays Nurse to Twin Babies

Two tiny infants, twins, jammed the wheels of routine at City Hall, while Mayor Curley played nurse to them in the Licensing Inspectional Department on the fourth floor of City Hall. It was because the twins, who are seven years old, were the eighty-seventh couple, twelve of whom are twins, since 1910, and three regular visitors from the Mayor, who was on hand to congratulate them and present the usual token gift.

He did more than that. Right away the Mayor became the chief entertainer of the twins in the same fashion he had up, then to the top floor, so that they could look down on the roofs of the buildings, and finally to the Mayor's office. There he had enough names of prominent citizens signed to the single check to show the twins what a check of that kind is for, and to get in too much of a while they are drinking.

Seeks to Have Court Restrain His Father

Charles A. Grimes has filed a bill in equity in which he asks the Court to restrain his father, Michael Grimes, from interfering with his business. He charges that two years ago his father gave him a ten years' lease to a garage on Washington street, Winthrop, and that recently his father leased the same piece of property to Willard Simpson of Boston, who is now in possession of it.

TO FINE STREET CLOCKS $5 A DAY

Clock owners who are still protesting the final ruling of the street commissioners that all clocks in the down town section of the city must either be removed or hung from buildings under penalty of $5 fine for every day the clocks are in the old positions after June 1, appeal today in Mayor Curley.

Only two of the street clocks have so far been removed, although both Mayor Curley and Commissioner Hall, on the last day set, were at work. These are the Thompson-Spence clock on Washington street, and the Filene's clock on Summer street. Filene's clock was removed yesterday, one of the clock owners there objecting to the order to remove the clocks on the score of their usefulness. Edward A. Filene, of Filene's, Franklin A. Shuman and Frederick Winsor, directors in the Old South Trust Company, and F. P. Denwell, the Summer street jeweler, have consented to have their clocks remain in compliance with the order, according to Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Publicity Bureau, which is behind the movement. Practically fourteen of these 30 clock owners are ready and willing to move their clocks or to hang them, so who are holding out, trying to stir up agitation? Only two, it is said, and they are somewhat stock admitted that he is worth $1,000 more rent because of the clock, and he is willing to pay it, but nothing doing. They have all been reported in such authority.

TELL OF DRINKS IN WHITNEY CASE

said he lives on Sixth street, South Boston, and that from 1902 to 1905 he was employed by the Whitney store. He said he went on frequent errands to Mrs. Barker's apartment on Dalton street, Brookline, carrying bundles, messages and sometimes three times a week, and that he delivered whiskey from the Union House at Mr. Whitney's request.

He said he once went to the flat with Miss Mahoney to prepare it for Mayor Quincy's boys who were to come the next day.

Q—Do you recall exactly being sent to Hampden?—A—Not exactly, sir.

Q—To whom was it sent when ordered?—A—To Mrs. Allen.

Q—At whose request?—A—At Mr. Whitney's.

FLOWERS SENT.

He said flowers were also sent, and told of carrying a grip up to Hampden when one was sent. He could not "know what the grip contained, but it was always steady."

Harry O'Connell of Brookfield, employed for twenty-five years by Whitney, several years as a buyer, was the next witness called by Attorney Joseph F. O'Connell, counsel for Mrs. Whitney. He told of Mr. Whitney's drinking habits in 1885, but admitted under cross-examination he had never seen him take a drink after Christmas, 1893.

Attorney O'Connell—What were Mr. Whitney's drinking habits in 1898 at the time you entered his employ?—A—I don't know much about them during the first four or five years.

Q—Well, what do you know about them later on?—A—Well, we had whiskey nights.

Q—These were window-dressing nights?—A—Yes, sir.

Q—Who bought the whiskey?—A—I often bought some of it.

BOUGHT WHISKEY.

Q—Did Mr. Whitney buy any?—A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did Mr. Whitney drink in those days?—A—Yes, occasionally.

Q—Those window-dressing affairs were occasions of much festivity?—A—Yes, somewhat.

Q—Mr. Whitney was usually present?—A—Yes.

Q—Sometimes you stayed at the store all night, didn't you?—A—Yes, sir.

Q—Who got drunk?—A—I can't say.

Q—Did Mr. Whitney ever send out for liquor?—A—Some times.

Q—Where did he send you?—A—He told that to me.

Q—Did Mr. Chapman get any liquor for him?—A—Yes.

Q—Mr. Murphy?—A—I can't say.

Q—Do you recall an occasion when Mr. Whitney came back with a squash pie, asked Mr. Elvedt if he was ready for lunch and swatted the pie over Mr. Elvedt's face?—A—No, I think Mr. Pamgreo did that.

GOOD TIMES.

Q—Those were really hilarious occasions?—A—I can't say as to that. I had some good times, though.

Q—Mr. Whitney usually paid for it all?—A—Most of the time.

Q—Well, after years went on, what did you notice about Mr. Whitney's drinking?—A—Well, I would never call him a steady drinker.

Q—Did you ever see him on a spree?—A—No, sir.

Q—Did you ever go to the Thorndike or Mr. Whitney?—A—Yes, sir.

Q—How did you go, in a herdic?—A—No, we walked.

Q—Was there a custom at the store of drawing lots to see who would get rid of the empties?—A—Yes, sir.

Q—How often were you lucky enough to get rid of them?—A—Once.

Q—Did you ever see Mr. Whitney going home in a herdic?—A—No, sir.

Q—Do you ever recall Mr. Whitney saying to you he was surrounded by a lot of leeches he couldn't get rid of?—A—I do not.

Q—Mr. Whitney went to New York frequently?—A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you recall on occasion when he was drunk and strande dfor money around the Manhattan Hotel?—A—No, sir.

NEW HAVEN BOND BILL IS PASSED

Both branches of the Legislature today passed the mortgage bond bill of the New Haven road. In the Senate the vote was 29 to 3, and in the House the vote was 161 to 27.

According to statements made in both branches the bill is substantially in accordance with the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and is indorsed by Governor Walsh.

Senator Wells in the Senate and Representative Kennard of Somerville, the Republican leaders, announced that the bill no longer grants to railroad corporations the powers described as "vicious" by Governor Walsh. They declared that the bill has been supplemented to meet the Governor's demands and imposes stricter requirements on the financial management of railroads than were before in the history of the State.

The bill permits the railroads—it was designed to help the New Haven—to fund their floating debts and to issue mortgage bonds. The railroads are permitted to issue notes and bonds to an amount equal to their capital stock, but further issues must be approved by the Public Service Commission as consistent with the best interests of the people.

The bill is so drawn that it does not invalidate securities issued by the railroads in excess of their capital stock.

It was also said during the debate that the bill excludes the possibility of taking in the much-mooted Prudden securities under the New Haven's mortgage.

Lotta Awarded Prettiest Girl Contest Prize

BROCKTON, June 4.—Miss Lotta Crabtree of Boston came back to her own today when she was awarded the prize for being the "prettiest girl" at the Brockton society dog show. Miss Crabtree and Mrs. Alfred Freshel of Detroit were the chief competitors for the big prize, all the pretty girls of Brockton and vicinity having a sudden attack of shyness when they saw the famous Lotta in the contest. The judges brushed aside the rules of the contest to make room for Miss Crabtree and Mrs. Freshel. The rules required that the "girl" be under twenty-five and should weigh in the vicinity of 150 pounds.

A slipper worn by Miss Crabtree when she was doing her famous dances years ago was auctioned off for $10 to Alfred Freshel.

RIOT DETAIL FOR BIRTH OF NATION

Orders were given by Superintendent Crowley to Riot details of police in the downtown police station to prevent disturbances by opponents to the decision of the new censors' board, at the performance of the "Birth of a Nation" at the Tremont Theatre tonight, on account of the demonstration last night.

Crowds of excited people filled Tremont street, marching silently up and down past the theatre. The presence of a big police detail under the superintendent himself, prevented even an attempt at disorderliness. Only when the demonstrators tried to address a crowd in front of the theatre toward the close of the performance, was it necessary for the police to interfere, and then only to move the crowd out of the street to the Common.

To the crowd in the Common, Professor Allen W. Whaley started a denunciation of Mayor Curley, but was silenced by repeated cheers for the Mayor.

J. Mott Hallowell today addresses an open letter to the colored citizens of Greater Boston urging them to refrain from force on the ground that result to any violence would be a justification of the very thing they protest against.

LLOYD GEORGE WARNS ENGLAND OF PERIL IN MUNITION SHORTAGE

LONDON, June 4.—David Lloyd George, new Minister of Munitions, warned the nation of impending conscription of labor, during an address at Manchester, in which he appealed to employers and their workmen to furnish more munitions to drive the Germans out of France.

"It is a war of munitions," he said, "and the government has decided compulsory powers are essential to utilize the resources of the country to the best advantage."

The drafting of British labor, as planned by Lloyd George, is considered here as the equivalent of martial law for British workshops. Actually it is a plan without a precedent.

He declared Germany's triumph at Przemysl due to her sufficiency of munitions and expressed the belief that, if the allies had been as well equipped in France, no invader would be on French soil today.

FIGHTING FOR LIFE.

"Our country is fighting for its life, for the liberties of Europe, and upon what it does, upon what it is prepared to sacrifice, depends the issue," said Lloyd George. "It depends more upon the masters and men occupied in running workshops than upon any part of the community whether Great Britain will emerge from this colossal struggle beaten, humiliated, stripped of power, honor and influence, and a mere bondslave of cruel military tyranny, or whether it will come out triumphant, free and more powerful than ever for good in the affairs of men.

"I come here to tell you the truth. Unless you know it, you cannot be expected to make sacrifices. Our Russian allies have suffered a severe setback. The Germans have achieved a great success, not because of the superior valor of their soldiers or strategy of their generals. The German triumph is due entirely to superior equipment, an overwhelming superiority of shot and shell and munitions and equipment. It was a battle won by the use they made of their skilled industries, and especially by the superior organization of German workshops.

OUGHT TO BE OBEYED.

"Two hundred thousand shells were concentrated in a single hour on the heads of the gallant Russians. Had we been in a position to apply the same process to the Germans on our front the Germans would have been turned out of France and driven half way across the devastated plain of Flanders. They would have been well out of the country they had tortured and tormented with dastardly cruelty. More than that, we should have actually penetrated into Germany.

"I don't mind guillotining ministers—generals, if necessary—but until they reach the scaffold they ought to be obeyed, and above all, do not unnerve them by sniping from behind."

Speaking of conscription, he said:

"To introduce compulsion as an important element in organizing the national resources of skilled industry and trade does not necessarily mean conscription in the military sense of the term. Conscription means the raising by compulsory methods of armies to fight Great Britain's battles abroad.

"I say to those who wish to dismiss conscription for the time being as a means of levying armies for fighting abroad that they ought not thereby to assume that compulsion is unnecessary in enabling us to mobilize the industrial strength of the country. We were the worst organized nation in the world for this war, which showed that we had nothing to do with precipitating it. It is a war of munitions and the government has decided compulsory powers are essential to utilize the resources of the country to the best advantage."

When Parliament convened today announcement was made that King George had given royal assent to the bill passed yesterday which obviates the necessity of re-electing the newly appointed members of the Cabinet to Parliament.

David Lloyd-George has arrived at Liverpool.

37,000 War Babies for Year Foreseen by Mrs. Pankhurst

LONDON, June 4.—Over 37,000 war babies for the first year of the conflict are foreseen by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, according to what she told an audience of women in the Palladium here.

The women plan a home for the children. Mrs. Pankhurst said she made her estimate from figures furnished by Mrs. Bramwell Booth, wife of the Salvation Army leader.

Later Mrs. Pankhurst called for the government to establish compulsory military service for both men and women, saying half a million German women were now making munitions of war.

sister of Mrs. Nellie Eldredge Shaw, who was so much in the public eye five years ago.

Nellie Eldredge married former State Senator James F. Shaw, the Fairhaven financier. In the spring of 1910 she fled to California with her eleven-year-old son Eldredge Shaw. Harrison Gray located her in Los Angeles and found it Rear Admiral the Shaw family chauffeur. The wife informed Gray later and double divorce proceedings were entered.

H. Fisher Eldredge, father of Mrs. Shaw and of Mrs. Wilder, the central figure in the New Jersey sensation, will be among the witnesses for Senator H. Wilder, the present plaintiff. Mrs. Wilder is another witness she explained her appearance on behalf of her husband by saying she thought she owed him reparation, also that she owed a duty to the public to warn them against Dr. Willis.

WOMEN'S BALCONY FILLED.

Mrs. Wilder's testimony formed a confession that aroused the spectators. The court room was packed when Mrs. Wilder was on the stand. There is a peculiar custom in Morristown. Women never sit in the balcony in court. It holds sixty and all sixty were there. A group of girls in their teens seemed to enjoy the testimony immensely.

Mrs. Wilder wore black silk, a black straw hat, and a deeply edged black veil, which she lifted only when she took the stand.

"Why did you allow the first kiss, and what you describe as the first approach by Dr. Willis?" she was asked.

"He had a surprising power over me and I could not resist him."

"Why didn't you call upon your father or upon some of your servants?"

UNDER DOCTOR'S CONTROL.

"I don't confide in my servants about such things," Mrs. Wilder answered with a sort of sniff.

She had testified that her relations with Dr. Willis lasted several months. She was asked now she had not requested him to discontinue his visits.

"He would want to know the reason why," she replied.

"Why didn't you refuse to let Dr. Willis in when he called during your husband's absence?

"He always acted like a perfect gentleman when he first came to my house. But that was a mask. He had perfect control over me. He tricked me many times."

"Didn't you ever think of his wife?"

"I spoke of her and he told me not to mind—that she was a nut."

"As a matter of fact, weren't you pleased with Dr. Willis's attentions?"

"Yes, after the first few times," she admitted. "But when I ceased to love him I thought to myself, 'How did I ever come to let that beast have control over me?'"

"What made you finally tell your husband?"

"Well, it would have been suicide or something else if I didn't."

"And what did he say?"

"He took my hand and told me, 'You have broken my heart.' I had hesitated to tell him, because it is mighty hard to tell one's husband that one has been a bad woman with his friend.

"You realize the disgrace of all this, do you not?" inquired Mr. King, the cross-examiner.

"Yes, but I felt I should tell it all because of the stories that Dr. Willis was circulating around town about me—that I was insane and a drunkard."

CALL ALIENISTS.

Alienists have been summoned at Morristown. Among them is Dr. Britton D. Evans, one of the famous battery of alienists for Harry K. Thaw. He has been retained now as a prospective witness for the Wilders. Mrs. Wilder was asked in cross-examination if she was insane. She retorted, "Ask Dr. Evans."

Mr. Wilder testified that any money he might receive in this action he intended to donate to charity.

The defendant later took the stand and gave testimony that the suit was based on revenge on the part of Mrs. Wilder for his refusal further to attend the family.

DOCTOR BLAMES WOMAN.

Wilder testified that Dr. Willis had confessed to him and to his father-in-law, H. Fisher Eldredge.

Dr. Willis entered point blank denials to every accusation. He never even kissed Mrs. Wilder, he said. He never called her "Sadie dear." The utmost familiarity he might have indulged in was to have placed his hand on her shoulder—and he did that, he said, with nearly all his women patients.

COUNTESS NURSE TURNS PALACE INTO A HOSPITAL

Countess Carlo Dentice di Frasso, daughter of the former Mrs. Henry Siegel.

ROME, June 4.—Countess Carlo Dentice di Frasso, daughter of Mrs. M. V. Wilde, the former Mrs. Henry Siegel, is the latest of the large number of American girls who have married into the nobility of Europe to enter actively into Red Cross relief work. The Count and Countess di Frasso have given up their palace here to permit its being converted into a hospital for the care of wounded soldiers.

They have given their summer home at Brindisi to the government to be used as a naval hospital. With four other titled women, including the Princess Sob Faratino, who was formerly Miss Jane A. Campbell, the Countess di Frasso will have charge of the Red Cross work in Rome.

The Count di Frasso, who was a member of the Italian parliament before Italy declared war, has received the King's permission to recruit and organize a regiment of cavalry.

FLEWELLING FOR VAN RIPER'S PLACE

The Rev. Ralph T. Flewelling of the Leominster Methodist Church will be appointed by the board of trustees of Boston University to succeed Professor B. W. Van Riper, who lately resigned the chair of philosophy in that institution.

Dr. Flewelling has held pastorates in Newton Centre, Athol and Cambridge and is considered one of the best informed of the younger men in the Methodist ministry on ethics and philosophy, upon which subjects he has already written two books.

He was graduated from the Boston School of Theology, Boston University, in 1902, and in his student days was ordained by the congregation of the South Walpole Methodist Church.

Professor Van Riper resigned because the trustees considered him as not of sufficiently religious turn of mind to teach philosophy in a methodist university.

Freshman Wins Harvard Prize With War Poem

The Lloyd McKim Garrison prize poem at Harvard has been written by Thayer Nelson of Hubbards Wood, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Thacher is a freshman. According to the rules of the competition the score of undergraduate competitors had to offer a poem dealing with Belgium. The prize was $100 and a silver medal. The Harvard Monthly publishes the poem in its current issue and has granted a special permission to the Boston AMERICAN to place it before the general public today. The poem follows:

Wait, watch and pray.
The uneven candles from the altar burn.
The shattered windows blaze the last return
Of sinking day.
The evening sky
Lapses from battled crimson into dark,
And to altar tapers, spark on spark,
The stars reply.
And black above
The shot-torn rafters meeting overhead
Watch o'er the land's petition for its dead,
A grief of love
That never ends.
A tattoo, shrapnel-scarred and faint with war,
Humbled along the church's stone-strewn floor,
In conquest bends.
Hands to receive
The sacrament of Christ, the blood of peace,
The benediction prayer of swift release;
Diadems reprieve,
Kneeling alone,
Holdcum, bowed down, but not reduced, aspires
In hope to see the morning gild her spires
And dawn alone
For dark tonight,
When brothers slay from hill to distant hill,
Or in a bayonet charge, white hot to kill,
Fall in the fight.
God grant the day
Break golden clear beyond the coming morn.
Wait, fight and future glory will be born:
Wait, fight and pray.

Maine Schooner on Frying Pan Shoals

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The coast guard cutter Seminole today was ordered to the assistance of the three-masted schooner Carrie Strong of Thomaston, Me., bound from Portland, Me., to Brunswick, Ga., which was driven ashore on Frying Pan Shoals, N. DANIELS ADVISES FUTURE ADMIRALS

By International News Service.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 4.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels in presenting commissions to the graduating class at the Naval Academy today advised future admirals to strive for self-mastery and self-control. This, he said, "must be attained if you would be worthy of the noble heritage that comes to every American privileged to enter the naval service."

He added:

"The man who secures the earnest co-operation of all on board ship does not owe it to regulations of strict discipline, important and essential as they are. He owes it to the spirit of justice and appreciation which pervades the ship. The officer cannot possess these qualities unless he is captain of his soul, master of his tongue, dictator of all tasks on the first rung in the ladder upon which you must place your feet if you would climb to the fighting top and direct the fire of the turret gun."

He pointed out the progress made in the navy since the "muddy" days of Dewey, emphasized the worth of submarine and suggested the probability of a "submersible battleship, which shall fire when at the surface of the water, then dive, reload and emerge to fire again."

In the opinion of many medical authorities, the development of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) is hastened, if not actually precipitated, by a loss of lime from the system. Fresh Favors for Fans

By H. W. LANIGAN

The season is reaching its sensible stage, so let's glance over the big league sweat orders and see what debutantes have survived. First and foremost, not counting our own Eddie Fitzpatrick, now subbing for Johnny Evers, Shortstop Bancroft of the Phils seems to be just about the niftiest of the newcomers. McGraw has no new regular, though Brainard, plucked from Beaumont, Tex., has helped out nicely enough when sent in for Merkle and Fletcher. Still, he's no real rint. Betzel, who hails from Columbia, Ga., has gone in at third for the Cardinals. He's a very little fellow and evidently has a chance to come through. He hit .312 in the South Atlantic League. Hafed, with the Pirates for a short while a year ago, though with Sioux City most of the Summer, as the record books will show—the kid got in 158 games, batting at a .321 gait—has landed work in Fritz Clarke's centre pasture. Incidentally, he seems to be in the big arena for all times.

The American League's Best Bets, so far as the rooter market goes, seem to be "Tiger" Young, the Detroit Tiger's new second baseman, a capture from Sacramento, where he clouted .375 and in 199 matinees, too! Smith, the Indian's most promising young right fielder, who tickled the pill to the merry tune of .332 for Lee Fohl in Waterbury last Summer; Felch, Brief, a come-back from the St. Louis Browns, and Quinlan, all of the White Sox; "Baby Doll" Jacobson, Dixieland's 1914 wizard, who is Hughie Jennings' extra hand, and Connolly, the Georgetown University lad, who is making good in Clark Griffith's outfield whenever allotted the chance.

"Tiger" Young has not shown down in this section as yet, and will have to go some to prove a better recruit than Bancroft. This youth is easily the best broiler coming to Boston so far this Summer.

* * *

The slipping Phils saved themselves from complete assassination in the lesser end of Greater New York by hooking on to the final game of the series. 'Twas a most meritorious matinee, as regards the figures. Mayer pitched a wee bit better than Appleton; the Phils punched out six hits to the Dodgers' five and the errors were none for the winners and only two for the losers.

* * *

The win put the Phils back in second place. But we deem it a safe forecast that ere the forthcoming western trip in the Tener body comes to a close that our Braves, and the Dodgers as well, will be gallivanting in front of the troupe of Moran and that mayhaps St. Louis will also be leading them. Which, per past history as regards baseball forecasts, ought to have the Phils in first place or very close thereto by the time the tour terminates. Still, we honestly and truly believe that the Phils are scrutiling and are going to behave for the rest of the Summer.

Western League May Have to Disband

DENVER, Col., June 4.—The Western League is in grave danger of going to pieces for financial reasons. President O'Neil has asked all the players if they are willing to go through the season on a percentage basis. Denver has declined. If the percentage basis is not accepted the magnates plan to cut salaries arbitrarily.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the third of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston American by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the American on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Between your lowest rib and the top of your hip-bone there is a space of about the width of the palm of your hand, when you hold your body erect. If you could maintain that distance between the hip and rib, it would mean that you were well advanced in physical development.

The interior of your body, as I said before, contains your vital organs and was made just big enough to contain them comfortably. If you diminish that space, and whenever you do diminish it, you deprive those organs of their proper elbow-room, and disable them from doing properly the vitally important things which they were made to do.

When you stand, lift up your chest—the whole barrel whose staves are your ribs. The front of your chest will then become prominent, instead of flat. Do not press your shoulders back, but push the chest out. This is not to inflate it with air, and then to let it collapse when you exhale, but to hold it permanently in its prominent position, whether you exhale or inhale.

Your head will now be up, your back straight and your abdomen—the region below the breastbone—stretched out vertically to its full extent. Keep the loins slightly back, so that a line dropped from your breast-bone would fall clear to the ground without touching anything below the point from which it starts. Stand so all ways, and walk so, too. After a month or two, you will hold the position without effort or thought, spontaneously.

Then you may be pardoned for feeling gratified with yourself, for not one man in a thousand does it, and not one in a hundred could do it if he tried.

You are only at the beginning, however. A thousand men can stand straight for one who sits straight. When you are able to sit straight as easily and spontaneously as you stand straight, you will be far on the way to being an athlete.

When you can habitually keep your chest prominent, your head up, back straight and abdomen in drawn while reading, writing, eating and conversing, and can do it easily, without strain or self-consciousness, you will be a picked man, and your interior organs will be having the time of their lives.

It is not an easy feat, but very difficult, few men, even among those called athletes can accomplish it—keep it up day in and day out. It is, in fact, a test of first rate physical condition and development. Never to relax, and yet never to appear or to feel stiff, rigid and awkward—don't be discouraged if months of hard work elapse before you achieve it.

For, in order to achieve it, all the muscles of abdomen, back and sides must have been inured to active service.

How that may best be done shall be our next study. Meanwhile, remember that the reason why the erect posture of the body is important is that the interior organs may thus be given full and free space for the performance of their functions. Be rived of that, their efficiency will deteriorate and your general health will decline.

BINGHAM NEW TRACK CAPTAIN

William J. Bingham '14, of Lawrence, was elected captain of the Harvard track team for next season. Bingham is a star half-miler. The election was made by the winners of the 'H' during the past season and there was no opposition. Bingham prepared at Exeter and is a member of the Hasty Pudding, Phoenix, Institute and Dickey clubs.

Wanamaker May Be Lost to Hockey Team

Harvard is likely to lose Elmer Wanamaker, the peerless Little Melrose hockey star. Wanamaker is out to complete his four-year course in three seasons and thus emulate Captain Pete Bartlett, who resigned from the hockey leadership on achieving his desire.

Wanamaker hopes to obtain his degree this June and if he does he will be unavailable for the hockey or baseball teams. Bingham expects to be on hand to assist Captain Bartlett, who resigned from the hockey leadership on achieving his desire.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong and very active at the opening and prices ranged from one to five points or more at the outset. Subsequent business was brisk. The Federal court decision of the United States Steel Corporation contributed to that. It is believed that the decision in favor of this corporation is a good augury for American Can, International Harvester, Corn Products and other subsidiaries against which the government has brought dissolution suits. There was as much interest as ever in what President Wilson will say next to Emperor William of Germany, but international difficulties no longer seem to depress stock speculation.

BROKERS WERE EXCITED.

Traders seethed around U. S. Steel. New York, one of the nine cities in which the corporation has offices, is to fix the price selling orders will start on different sides of the crucial line next week. Steel sold up to 63¾. American Can had even a wider opening range, the first sales being at 38 and then at 41, a net gain of 2¾.

After buying orders had been filled recessions followed, and many issues lost their earlier gains. But the market remained strong. There was a good deal of excitement on the exchange floor, and the volume of business offered, and brokers with orders to buy were kept busy.

GAINS IN BOTH MARKETS.

Soon the opening gains in New York included Amalgamated 2⅞, Chino, Utah 1⅜, Inspiration 1, American Can 4¾, U. S. Steel 2⅝, Bethlehem Steel 15, American Locomotive 1, American Car & Foundry 1⅝, General Motors 1¾, Lehigh Valley 1⅜, U. S. Rubber 1, Studebaker 1¼, Mexican Petroleum 1, Pennsylvania ¾, Atchison, T. & S. F. 1, Baltimore & Ohio 1, Haven 1¼, Northern Pacific 1, Reading 1, Southern Pacific ⅞, St. Paul 2¾ and Union Pacific 1. Most of these issues were below their highest.

Interest at that time Alaska Gold was up ⅝, Butte & Superior 1 and Nevada Zinc 1⅛, while among advances for copper were Allouez 1, Calumet & Arizona, ex-dividend, 3½, Copper Range ⅝, North Butte 1¾, Mohawk 3 and Superior ½. In the general list Shoe Machinery had advanced 1 and New Haven 1¼.

NEW HAVEN'S GOOD SHOWING.

The New Haven road's report for April is a good showing. Its net corporate income for that month was $257,331, as compared with a deficit of $258,180 for April last year. The road's net income for ten months was $1,214,222. For the corresponding previous period instead of a surplus there was a deficit of $1,043,909. Some other properties in the system, including the Central New England, Ontario & Western and the New England Steamship Company, make a better showing for April this year than the same 1914 month. But trolley companies earned less.

COPPER AND SPELTER.

The copper market is more active and the export price is 13⅛ cents a pound. Domestic selling is at 13 mostly. In the London metal market today asset and futures advanced 10s each, which was also the sale for electrolytic. There was no change in the spelter quotation. Sales in this country the price is still climbing. A local financial publication says—"Spelter prices have moved up again with June delivery now being quoted at 9¾ cents a pound for ordinary brands. Sales of August have been made at 12 cents a pound, while for the closing three months of the year business has been done at 12 and 24 cents a pound."

Now Is The Time To Pile Up Votes

There are now only twenty-nine days more before the end of one of the greatest newspaper contests New England has ever seen. In these twenty-nine days it will be decided who shall go to the wonderful Exposition at San Francisco and San Diego as the guests of the Boston American.

From the big number now contending for the Tours and cash prizes twenty-five will know, shortly after July 3d, that they have secured enough votes to qualify for a trip lasting three weeks—a Tour which will be the last word in luxury and in which every expense will be paid by the Boston American.

There has been a tremendous vote-gathering spurt in the last few days; it is as though the contestants realize that the end is near, and they are putting on extra speed in an endeavor to come out among the winning twenty-five.

There is no way of telling now who the winners are likely to be—this is one of the puzzling things about a contest of this kind—everything depends on individual efforts, and such effort is interpreted in the matter of votes.

The race is not always to the swift, says an old proverb, but the race IS always to the contestant who gets the most votes—at least, in this case.

Every candidate seems to be working to get to the top of the list. There is not much more to say to candidates today except that a persevering campaign of vote-gathering must be pursued every hour of every day for the next twenty-nine days by those who expect to win one of the Big Tours.

There are so many contestants who realize the value of the awards offered by the American that the rivalry is bound to be at a high point all through the race. Don't let up for a minute on your vote-gathering efforts—wait until after July 4 before you even think of taking any rest. These prizes are too worth-while to surrender without a fight to the finish.

LAUD WALSH VETO OF NEW HAVEN BILL

Arthur L. Speare, counsel to the Massachusetts Higher Speed Traffic and John J. Mitchell, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange and the Exchange Trust Company, today indorsed Governor Walsh's veto of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad validation bill.

Mr. Speare appeared before the Legislative Committee on Railroads in support of the bill, but Governor Walsh questioned. He says the Governor performed a valuable public service in vetoing the bill in the closing moments. In commending Governor Walsh for his fearless stand Mr. Speare speaks for 23,000 members of the Real Estate Exchange.

President Mitchell of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange who sent a letter to the committee in support of the bill, also praises Governor Walsh for his defense of the public interests.

The articles follow:

By John J. Mitchell, President Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

The veto by Governor Walsh of the astonishing piece of legislation known as the Hartford-New Haven railroad bill was uncompromising approval in the minds of the citizens of the state considered for Massachusetts welfare.

To any business man it has long been apparent that the best interests of New England needed and ought to have legislation that was constructive character, and there has prevailed a striking unanimity of public sentiment that was entirely that sort of legislation. Behind this substantial public sentiment were aligned the Railroad and Harbor Commission and the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts.

The painstaking scrutiny of proposed legislation and Massachusetts Commission resulted in a measure which might well have met the requirements of the railroad solution, and there was every reason to believe that there was a readjustment of the New Haven's sinister situation was at hand.

The effort to obtain the proposed legislation met with prompt rebuff at the hands of the public, as well as the Public Service Commission. At length, however, during the days which ought to have been the closing days of the legislative session, a compromise measure was put before us and it went through with a rush. Those who had supported the first compromise contained insidious provisions by which, as most unwarranted liabilities, the railroads were enabled to dangle valuations and fix the rates for passenger and freight. It is folly. It is inexcusable. The Governor is right.

By Arthur L. Speare.

The action of His Excellency the Governor, in vetoing the New Haven railroad bill, at the last moment is worthy the commendation of the public.

So far as I have been able to examine the matter, the position taken by His Excellency is absolutely consistent with the public interests. At the hearings on these measures which I have often attended, the general bonding bill and the validating bill were called, received the support of nearly all of the interests which would be affected by the financial operation of the railroads.

As counsel for the State Board of Trade, I have, in the past, been approving these measures as they came from the Public Service Commission, and believe now, as I did then, that they should have been passed in accordance with the Legislature at that time. The hurried amendments which were given us in the closing hours of the Legislature certainly warranted the action of His Excellency.

The protective clause in the general law for the approval of bond issues, disposition of capital stock, or corporations or to revise their capitalization by the Public Service Commission was certainly a safeguard in the interests of the public, and with this removed His Excellency was fully warranted in his veto.

The Veto of the Railroad Bill Is the Reward of the Voter Who Thinks

Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Your editorial this morning concerning the New Haven validation bill is sound and searching, especially with reference to validation of unearned increment.

The logic of your argument is incontestable, but it seems to me it would be fairer to your readers if you would mention the fact that the principle you contend for has not yet been expressly decided as a matter of law, and also that, of persons in and around State Street and Wall Street, the number who would agree with you would be a small minority only, in my belief not more than one in a hundred. Yours truly,

(Signed) E. D. CODMAN.

THE AMERICAN publishes above a letter from Mr. Edmund D. Codman on the vital matters involved in Governor Walsh's message vetoing the New Haven validation bill. Mr. Codman is one of the leading business men of Boston and was the president of the Fitchburg Railroad before it merged with the Boston & Maine. He knows the truth about the railroads and their aims and faults. The AMERICAN values the approval of Mr. Codman because his approval is in the nature of a confession from a prominent railroad man. He understands the great peril which lurks in the doctrine now promulgated by the railroads that they have a right to capitalize the prosperity and industry and enterprise and inventive genius of the country and make it the basis of an ever increasing rate of charges for transporting passengers and freight.

President Elmer J. Bliss of the Chamber of Commerce, the largest business organization of the world, and himself a very successful manufacturer, also agrees with the attitude which the Governor took when he challenged in his veto message this menacing doctrine. So do Louis D. Brandeis, George Fred Williams, George W. Anderson and hundreds of other able, thoughtful men.

Those thousands who set aside partisanship to vote for Governor Walsh last year, or who refused to vote for Mr. McCall with his reactionary railroad record in Congress, must congratulate themselves on their good judgment at this moment when they consider what would have been the attitude of Mr. McCall, who, as a member of Congress, with six lone companions, stood out against President Roosevelt's bill to regulate the railroads, and who was known as one of the most rabid friends of the railroads in all Congress. The Progressives who were discouraged at the slump in their vote last Fall must have taken courage from the Governor's position on the New Haven Railroad bill, for it was their stalwart refusal to aid and abet the reactionary Republican organization that enabled Governor Walsh to obtain his very comfortable plurality. When they are chided for not having accomplished anything, they can well reply that only those men accomplish nothing who merely vote for a party WITHOUT REGARD FOR ITS PRINCIPLES and that, on the other hand, those men accomplish everything that is the legitimate object of political effort when THEY SECURE THE PROMOTION OR THE PROTECTION OF THEIR PRINCIPLES, whether it is through the instrumentality of the party with which they were formerly associated or through the instrumentality of another party.

Political parties are a recognized and necessary institution in a great democracy, but they are, nevertheless, ONLY A MEANS TO AN END and never an end themselves.

Party ties are loosening throughout the country. Men are beginning more and more to ASK WHAT THE CANDIDATES PROPOSE TO DO if elected, and more and more to insist that they shall state their program definitely. Vague generalities delivered in Fourth of July orator style have ceased to be music in the ear of an enlightened public. The voters today are asking the candidates: "WHAT DO YOU PROPOSE TO DO?" If their proposals are satisfactory, then: "CAN YOU BE TRUSTED TO DO IT?"

The Attorney-General's Office Is a Power for Good

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ATTWILL is proving to be a good man in his office.

The AMERICAN has watched his opinions with interest and approval ever since he assumed his present duties. In a more spectacular way, perhaps, the Attorney-General's statement on the railroad legislation shows his metal.

The public does not adequately appreciate the power for good that exists in the Attorney-General's office. The cause lies in the failure of Attorneys-General to take the initiative at important junctures. Too often the power of this office has been reluctantly employed to protect the public interests only after public opinion has insisted upon action. Frequently, also, our Attorneys-General have not attempted to lock the barn door until after the horse has been stolen. Sometimes in the past our chief law officer has forgotten that his is a great judicial office and has prostituted it to partisan purposes.

Let us hope that Mr. Attwill will continue the good example he has already set.

The Jester

By Jane McLean

HE wears the fool's cap and the tinkling bells
The green and scarlet knavery of fun,
The grin of impishness that plainly tells
His mission, and his work is never done.

His nimble feet that, skipping here and there,
Slide into antics for the laughs of all,
Are his small fortune that no shadowy care
May mar the court's amusement with its pall.

So hard he works his clownishness that not
One present thinks to read his patient eyes,
Where, unreserved now, and long forgot,
A simple heart dwells, unaware, but wise.

Inklings and Thinklings

Poet named Viereck says that poet named Noyes is a cricket, while he (Viereck) is a nightingale. Never did care much for a nightingale since we caught cold waiting around to hear one sing.

Man's Duty Is to Make the Most of His Talents

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Says Each of Us Is Expected to Construct the Highest Order of Being Possible Out of the Material and Conditions Given to Us

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

AN interesting letter has been received which deserves attention, inasmuch as it relates to those vital questions of life which are of importance in the construction of character.

The writer of the letter says he is a young Jewish man, twenty years of age, having no definite profession and having had wide experience for one of his years, and, as he says: "Suffering nearly every mortification and humiliation that it seems possible for one to suffer, and now becoming somewhat satisfied by looking into the manifestations of occult things." Then the young man speaks as follows:

"My ancestors, whom I can trace back for numbers of centuries, have all been renowned rabbis and kabbalists, most of them having been credited with the performance of miraculous cures, etc. So I suppose I naturally inherit a desire for occult knowledge. In some of your articles you make mention that if one desires anything strongly enough and puts forth his best effort toward the attainment of it he will certainly accomplish his purpose, or, in other words, you would advocate that one can absolutely change the material conditions which he is fated to undergo.

"However, Emerson, in his essay on 'Self-Reliance,' tells us to 'accept the place the divine Providence has found for us, the society of our contemporaries, the connection of events. Great men have always done so,' etc., etc. Now, this attitude of Emerson, also the attitude of Annie Besant in her book, 'The Path of Discipleship,' is just contrary to the stand you take in some of your articles.

"Furthermore, I found, by experience, it was not best for me to do those things the accomplishment of which I was frustrated in, and that my failures have simply brought home to me a larger understanding of life.

At the Crossroads

"If I am not imposing on you I would like your personal opinion on the subject, as I am in a sense at the crossroads and can hardly distinguish between my intuitions and reasoning."

I think the young man has not read carefully the articles which have appeared in this column under my signature. Theosophy and New Thought (as it is understood by the writer) both claim only the possible in the matter of self-development and the changing of material conditions.

The man born a dwarf could not change his personality sufficiently to eject the role of the matinee idol, of Romeo, or of Samson. But that he can so conquer and overcome his seeming great misfortune to the extent of making his life a brilliant success was illustrated in the career of the late Marshall Wilder, the world-famous humorist, lecturer and impersonator.

All that is asked of each of us is to take the material and the conditions which belong to all and, out of these conditions, construct the very highest order of human being possible. One of the most successful men of the last century and one of the most noble philanthropists was a waif child left on the doorsteps of an orphan asylum.

Abraham Lincoln and Benjamin Franklin were both poor boys who slowly and painfully worked their way out of poverty and obscurity into the highest possible positions of trust and into immortal fame.

Not every one of us possesses the brain and the natural endowments which belonged to these men. But whatever brain and whatever endowments we do possess can be enlarged and increased by persistent thought coupled with persistent action. It is a curious and incontrovertible fact that whenever we think strongly and long on any subject information from unexpected sources comes to us on that subject, and opportunities for further investigation.

Power of Thought

It is simply the dynamic power of thought which blasts away the obstacles intervening between us and our purpose, and blazes the way toward the attainment of our desires.

When we are, as the writer of the letter above quoted says, thwarted and prevented absolutely from the accomplishment of some purpose, it is unquestionably the hand of our Invisible Guide trying to turn us into the right path. But one who has true power and true ability in any one direction cannot be diverted from that object, and obstacles are only hurdles which test his strength and skill.

There are foolish and unwise ambitions which ought to be thwarted. The girl who cannot carry an air, and whose vocal cords were never meant to convey music to the world, should not attempt to be an opera singer. The individual who has no sense of rhythm, rhyme or cadence in his soul should not attempt to be a poet and the one who has been unable to solve his problems in algebra in school should never enter upon a career which depends upon skill in higher mathematics for success.

The anaemic and frail youth should not set forth with the vain ambition to astonish the world as a Sandow; but he should set forth to make himself strong and virile and to increase his physical powers by persistent daily exercises and rich breathing and right calisthenics. Each one of us should seek to do well, to the utmost of our ability, such duties and obligations as lie nearest to us; holding in mind continually larger opportunities and a better environment, and asking the Great Helper for more light and power.

He who does this persistently and patiently will some day be surprised to find himself upon the heights.
